The Life of Patricia Ann Percy Johnson

Her Journey Begins

On October 5, 2026, Patricia Ann Percy-Johnson, lovingly known to those who cherished her as Pat, Trish, and Tricia, laid down her earthly cares and entered eternal rest at her home in Richlands, North Carolina. Her life stood as living proof that unconditional love and unwavering faith can move mountains.

Patricia's story began on February 5, 1963, in Leominster, Massachusetts, where she was born to Robert Henry Percy and Julia Mae James Percy. She was raised in Hot Springs, Arkansas, alongside her siblings, Gloria, Robert Jr., Marion, and Kathy. It was there, among her family, that her lifelong devotion to those she loved first took root.

A Life of Adventure, Service, and Strength

Patricia possessed an adventurous spirit and a smile so warm it was truly contagious. She was a rare and beautiful blend of softness and strength, tender in her affection, yet fierce in her convictions. Marched to the beat of her own drum, she boldly carved her own path, never shying away from difficult decisions and always ready to lead whenever life required it.

Her journey was marked by rich experiences and wide horizons. From living in Okinawa, Japan, as a young child to furthering her education and enjoying youth in Pasadena, California, Patricia embraced every corner of the world. Before becoming a mother, she found immense joy riding shotgun beside her husband as he drove freight trucks across the country, and throughout her life, she remained a lover of the open road, taking countless trips to visit and care for family in Michigan, Connecticut, Georgia, and beyond.

Throughout her dynamic life, Patricia wore many hats. She gave generously of herself as a community caregiver, grief counselor, chef, nurse, activist, political lobbyist, city board member, corporate auditor, NC Real Estate Broker and switchboard operator. Whenever someone needed her most, Patricia was there, serving others with integrity and perseverance while remaining wise enough to guard her peace and honor her boundaries.

A Mother's Heart & Devotion

Of all the meaningful roles she held, none brought Patricia greater joy or purpose than being a mother. Her life's mission was to raise her children in the name of Jesus Christ. She loved her children fiercely, giving her time selflessly and teaching them to pray and lean on the Lord in all things.

She constantly reminded her children that family is everything and that gratitude for what you have is a blessing in itself. Through her lived example, she instilled in them a deep respect for education, compassion for others, and an appreciation for true, enduring friendship. Her home and her heart were always open; anyone in search of belonging found a warm welcome at Patricia's table. She had a special love for children, a natural gift for nurturing, and the ability to fill any room with laughter simply by recalling fond memories of days gone by.

Faith, Passions, and Simple Pleasures

Patricia's faith in Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior was the immovable foundation of her life. She was a faithful member of First Mayfield Memorial Baptist Church in Charlotte, North Carolina, under the leadership of Pastor D.K. Ferguson. She held fast to the promise of Jeremiah 29:11, trusting always that God's thoughts toward her were thoughts of peace.

Patricia found beauty in life's simplest gifts. A true green-thumb "plant lady," she found joy in tending to her plants, traveling, and immersing herself in new cultural experiences. She loved quiet walks along the shore, watching the glory of sunrises and sunsets along the Crystal Coast. Her days were often filled with the soulful melodies of KEM and Sade, her heart was easily delighted by a bowl of butter pecan ice cream, and her legendary homemade banana pudding was a celebrated treasure at every family gathering.

Her Legacy

Patricia was preceded in death by her parents, Robert Henry Percy and Julia Mae James Percy; her beloved husband, Willie E. Johnson Sr.; her sister, Gloria Perkins; her brother, Robert Percy Jr.; and her grandparents, Albert James and Annie Jordan James.

She leaves to cherish her precious memory: her devoted daughters, Tiffany Johnson, Tameria Johnson, Symeria Johnson Jones (Alexander), and Julianna Johnson; her sisters: Kathy Tweedle and Marion Percy; and a host of nieces, nephews, extended family members, dear friends, and a most anticipated arrival of her first grandchild who will forever hold her memory close in their hearts.

Patricia's love for Christ, her reverence for nature and nurturing, and her passion for travel and culture live on in each of her children. Though her family would give anything for more time with her, they remain eternally grateful that God chose Patricia as the vessel of His divine love. Knowing that our Creator prepared a heavenly place for us, her family rejoices in knowing they now have two angels in Heaven preparing a place for their sweet reunion.
