See yourself when all is new

Just see yourself, just see me too;
Just see us all in a world that is new.
Think how you’ll feel, how it will be,
To live in peace, to be truly free.
No evil one will then prevail;
Rule by our God cannot ever fail.
The time will have come for a new earthly start,
The song of our praises will pour out from our heart:
“Jehovah our God, how well you have done!
All things are new by the rule of your Son.
The fullness of our heart overflows in our song;
All glory and honor and praise to you belong.”
Now see yourself, and see me too;
And look ahead to a world that is new.
No sight we see, no sound we hear
Will cause alarm or give rise to fear.
All has come true, just as he said;
Now over mankind, his tent is spread.
He now shall awaken those sleeping in death;
Their voices will join us with ev’ry grateful breath:
“Jehovah our God, how well you have done!
All things are new by the rule of your Son.
The fullness of our heart overflows in our song;
All glory and honor and praise to you belong.”

To my friend of sixty years

I had the privilege of knowing her for many years, and one of my fondest memories is that she introduced me to the man who would become my husband. Their friendship brought us together, and I am grateful to say that my husband and I have now shared 50 wonderful years of marriage. They remained dear friends throughout the years, and that connection is something I will always cherish.

She enjoyed spending time with family and friends. Some of the happiest moments were when we would gather as couples to enjoy dinners, take trips, and create lasting memories together. Those occasions were always filled with warmth, laughter, and companionship.

During my 25 years of military service, I was often stationed away from home. Whenever I returned, one of the things I looked forward to most was spending time with her. We would make time for one another, sharing lunch or dinner and catching up on life. Those one-on-one moments were special and are memories I hold close to my heart.

I was also very proud of her when she graduated from nursing school and became a Licensed Practical Nurse. I made it a priority to attend her graduation, despite being stationed away at the time, because it was such an important achievement in her life.

Above all, she was devoted to her family. She loved her daughters, grandchildren, and those closest to her. She was a quiet, independent, and private person, but when she was happy about something, you could truly see it. Whether celebrating her family, her accomplishments, or time spent with loved ones, those moments brought her great joy.

She will be remembered for her strength, her independence, her devotion to family, and the lasting impact she had on the lives of those who knew and loved her.

Love, Lorraine
