

Hi mom! it's your only son, Antonio.

I just want you to know that I'm grateful for you trying to teach me right from wrong. Even though we were raised up wrong, you did your best raising a man as a single mom.

You taught me to take accountability for my wrong doings and to stand up and be a man. You've always said to me, "if I make my bed hard, nobody is going to lay in that bed with you" Nobody will walk down that dark road with you and when your out you will be a changed man.

It took for you to leave, for me to understand what you had been telling me. The entire time you were telling me this, I promise you, I was listening. Although I strayed away. You were always there to catch me when I fell.

You were an awesome mom, I didn't see any mothers like you in this world. I mean the best mom a man can ask for. We think so much alike, it scared everyone around. You were able to put all this in order before leaving, I get it.

Now that you are home with Paulette, Eric, Ericka and Lil Jon, please let them know they are missed and I love them with all my heart. I'm praying that your unexpected home going will bring our family back together as a whole.

As your only baby, I used what you taught me and took care all of your business. I remember back in the day, living in Evanston teaching me to read and write, falling asleep with me laying on your back while watching a movie. It seemed like you weren't ready to go. It seems like it was yesterday we talked for a whole day, and now I'm laying you to rest. I hope I did the right thing. You expected me to do. Love you mom! I wish you didn't have to go. I love you forever and always.

Your son, loving you always.

Obituary

Marcia Faye Williams, age 64 of Cincinnati, Ohio went home to be with the Lord on August 27, 2026.

Marcia was born February 5, 1963, to Lucille McKelton and Richard Bolden in Cincinnati, Ohio. As a child she excelled in school, Marcia graduated Taft Senior High School in 1980.

She later earned her B.S. Degree in Social Work from Northern Kentucky University in 2005. 2009 she received her Associate Degree in Applied Science from University of Cincinnati.

From 2003-2007 Marcia worked as a Behavioral Specialist at Pressley Ridge. From 2007-2010 she was a Case Manager at Victory Neighborhood Service. From 2014-2015 she was a Behavioral Specialist from Children’s Home of Kentucky. 2017-2018 Marcia worked a Direct Care Professional at Community Concepts. 2018-2020 she was a Direct Care Professional at Catholic Residential Services and from 2020 until passing she worked for Cincinnati as a substitute teacher.

Marcia was a God-fearing woman, who served the Lord and helped others through her church and place of employment. She was an extremely accomplished woman who lived a private life. She enjoyed traveling, singing, and acting and writing. In 1990, Marcia played a small role in the movie “A Rage in Harlem” Where she met actors Forest Whitaker and Robin Givens and later she met the great Gregory Hines. That role sparked an interest for her to start writing stage plays.

She preceded in death by her (father) Richard Bolden (brother) Eric Bolden Sr. (sister) Paulette McKelton, (nephew) Montiz McKelton, (niece) Erica McKelton, (aunt) Willa Cave (Antonio’s father) Anthony Cook.

Marcia is survived by her (son) Antonio McKelton, (granddaughters) Sidney McKelton, SaNyah McKelton, (mother) Lucille McKelton, (sister) Phyllis Banks, Audrey McKelton, (brothers) Craig McKelton, Whitney (Jasmine) McKelton, (nephews) Phillip McKelton, Calvin McKelton, Curtis Banks, Cairo McKelton, Eric Bolden Jr., (nieces) LaTisha McKelton, Ambrossia McKelton, (BFF of 50+years) Paulette Twinkle Gordon, family in Mississippi, Cane and Boyce family and a host of great-nieces, nephews and cousins.
