

A Tribute from His Daughter

Real king status. ❤️👑 The biggest King Cole.
A heart of a lion. Strong, fearless, kind, humble, and full of love. A father Who did his best,
protected, provided, and loved his family with everything he had.

His crown may rest in Heaven now,
but his legacy will live on through me forever.

I love you, Daddy. 🗝️🕊️∞

Words from Byron

What's done is done,
What's gone is gone,
One of the Best life
Lessons is learning how to let go
And move on. It's okay to look back at your memory but never let the past stop
you from moving forward.

Reflections of Life

The Journey of Byron’s life, which we gather to celebrate today began on April 4, 1985, when a handsome baby boy was born to Larry Cole Sr. and Anita Penn in Tulsa, Ok. From the very beginning, he brought light into the lives of those around him. To know Byron was to know genuine love, unwavering loyalty, and a person who never hesitated to help someone in need.

Byron attended Cherokee Elementary School, Monroe Middle School, and East Central High School in Tulsa, before earning his GED. Through determination and hard work, he taught himself the skills of barbering and landscaping, becoming exceptionally talented at both. He was a barber at heart, and cutting hair was never just a job—it was his way of connecting with people, making them feel good about themselves, and serving his community. He also found joy in tree work and was a dedicated employee of Blue Sky for many years. One of his greatest dreams was to become a motivational speaker, using his life experiences to encourage others to never give up.

As a teenager, Byron met Saquida. What began as a friendship grew into a beautiful love story. They later married and were blessed with three amazing children: Byron Terrail Penn Jr., Taveon Penn, and Kamyah Penn. Although their marriage eventually ended, Byron's love for his children never changed. They were the center of his world, his greatest accomplishment, and his deepest source of pride. Nothing made his face light up more than talking about them or spending time with them. Becoming "Papa B" to his beloved grandson, Terrail Penn, brought him a new kind of happiness that filled his heart with joy.

Family meant everything to Byron. He loved deeply and without condition. If you were blessed enough to be loved by him, you knew you always had someone you could count on. He would give his last to help someone else, often placing the needs of others before his own. His heart was bigger than words could ever describe.

Byron was truly an old soul. He loved listening to the blues, dressing sharply and carrying himself with confidence and style. Byron grew up watching his father, Larry, listen to and dance to blues music, which sparked his lifelong love of the blues. His laughter was unforgettable, his sense of humor was contagious, and his smile could instantly make others feel at ease. In his spare time, Byron enjoyed working out, fishing, boxing, cars, and horseback riding, and many other things.

Those left to cherish his memory include his beloved children, Byron Terrail Penn Jr., Taveon Penn, and Kamyah Penn; his precious grandson, Terrail Penn, who lovingly called him "Papa B"; his beloved mother, Anita Penn; his honorary mother and aunt, Lillian Penn Robateau; his foster mother, Mama Cookie; his godmother Kay Brooks; his maternal sister, Larrica Penn; his paternal sisters, Cinnamon Cole and Myia Cole; his maternal brothers, Emerson Penn and Joshua Penn; his paternal brothers, Larry Cole Jr., and Donnell Cole; along with his nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles, cousins, and an abundance of friends who became family through the love he freely gave.

Byron was welcomed into eternal rest by his father, Larry Cole Sr.; his brothers, Petey Cole and Rico Cole; his maternal grandparents, Emerson Penn Sr. and Isabell Penn; his paternal grandparents Salina Decker and Ervin Cole and many beloved aunts, uncles, cousins, and loved ones who went before him.

He will be remembered for his joyful spirit, big heart, and the lasting impact he made on everyone who knew him. Rest peacefully until we meet again. You will always be loved, forever missed, and never forgotten.
