Charlotte Jane White

Charlotte “Char” Jane White, age 79, of Athens, Tennessee, entered into eternal rest on June 7, 2026. Born in Athens, Tennessee, she was the beloved daughter of the late Harvey and Jesse Mae White. Charlotte received her education in the McMinn County School System and attended the historic J.L. Cook School in Athens, Tennessee.

Charlotte’s life was defined by her unwavering faith, compassionate spirit, and dedication to serving others.

Her spiritual journey began at a young age at AOH Church of God, where her relationship with the Lord first took root. That faith remained the cornerstone of her life, guiding her decisions, shaping her character, and sustaining her through every season. In her later years, she remained a faithful and devoted member of Overcoming Faith Christian Center/Light of Life International Ministries.

Known for her generous heart and selfless nature, Charlotte was a pillar within her community. She never hesitated to extend kindness to those in need, often using her own resources to provide meals for the homeless and less fortunate after long days at work. She possessed a special compassion for the elderly, regularly visiting those who had little or no family support, offering companionship, encouragement, and the simple gift of being present. To many, she was a source of comfort, hope, and genuine love.

Charlotte was also known for her strong work ethic and dedication. From 1975 to 1990, she was employed at Plastics Inc., where she worked faithfully while building a life for her family and earning the respect of coworkers and friends alike. Whether on the job or in her community, Charlotte approached every responsibility with integrity, compassion, and a servant's heart.

Beyond her professional accomplishments, Charlotte found purpose in the relationships she built and the lives she touched along the way. Her kindness, wisdom, and willingness to lend a helping hand made a lasting impression on those around her. Whether offering encouragement to a coworker, support to a friend, or guidance to a loved one, Charlotte carried herself with grace and compassion. She believed in treating everyone with dignity and respect, and her caring spirit left a legacy that continues to inspire all who knew her.

Charlotte devoted much of her life to the care and well-being of children. As a Tennessee State Licensed Child Care Provider, she embraced her calling to nurture, teach, advocate for, and protect young lives. Her influence reached far beyond her own family, touching generations of children who benefited from her patience, wisdom, and loving guidance. She believed every child deserved to feel valued, supported, and safe, and she dedicated herself to making that belief a reality.

Above all, Charlotte cherished her family. She was a devoted mother, grandmother, sister, aunt, and friend whose love knew no bounds. Alongside the late Russell Clark Noland, the father of her children, Charlotte built a family that would become the center of her life and one of her greatest blessings. Her home was a place of warmth, laughter, guidance, and unwavering support. Though she was a mother to many through blood, friendship, and faith, her greatest joy came from seeing those she loved grow and thrive.

Charlotte was preceded in death by her parents, Harvey and Jesse Mae White; her brothers, Donald White, Lawrence L. White, Raymond C. White, all of Athens, Tennessee, and Dwight White of Germany; her sister, Anna L. Sullivan of Athens, Tennessee; her youngest daughter, Luciana O. Noland-Traylor of Atlanta, Georgia; and her beloved grandson, Xavier Noland of Athens, Tennessee.

She leaves to cherish her precious memory her sons, Barry Noland, Edward A. Noland, and Robyn L. (Calissa) Noland, all of Athens, Tennessee; her daughter, Monique E. "Nikki" Noland of Huntsville, Alabama; her brother, Harvey A. White of Athens, Tennessee; her sisters, Amy J. McCowan and Carla S. Davis; her beloved grandchildren, Shae Paris, Sage Noland, Aniya C. Noland, Ayden Akins, Derrick L. Jordan II, DeMia I. Jordan, Bria L. Richardson, Italia S. Noland, and Zanaiya R. Noland; a host of great-grandchildren; and a large circle of nieces, nephews, cousins, extended family members, church family, dear friends, and countless lives touched by her kindness, faith, and generosity.

Charlotte's legacy of love, service, faith, and compassion will continue to live on in the hearts of all who were blessed to know her. She will be deeply missed and forever remembered.
