

“The Climb”

The climb was long, the trail was worn,

Yet still he pressed ahead;

Through winding paths and rising hills,

By faith and courage led.

He knew the work, the ache, the view,

the beauty earned by climb;

And at the summit, bathed in light,

He stepped beyond all time.

No pack to bear, no path to prove,

Just peace where love has grown-

He reached the height we all seek still,

And found his way back home.
