

Just Resting

It seems so hard for us to see,
Our loved ones leave in sleep
But stop and think a moment
All her worries now have ceased.

We wish she could have stayed and spent
Oh, just another day
But in her leaving realize
What peace has come her way.

She has no more of suffering,
Or facing earthy fears
And sure she's left us all behind
No more of shedding tears.

She's gone on to a better life,
Of happiness serene
She's living in a paradise
A place we all have dreamed.

No harm can now come to her,
No evil will she see
This place she's often dreamed of
Is now reality.

We think we'll not recover,
Or overcome the pain
But time helps heal this hurt we feel
Good memories remain.

We'll think about the good times
And happy moments shared
But, remember in our thinking,
That she's still with One who cares.
