ENTERED ETERNITY
AUGUST 11, 2024

Unfortunately, Walter's parents' marriage was dissolved during Walter's formative years. However, his mother always made sure she kept Walter involved in activities and programs, such as Sunday school, VBS and Boy Scouts at Zion Baptist Church in Ardmore. She knew this would help develop positive character traits and social skills. Walter was devoted to his mom and sisters and always attentive to their needs.

Walter attended Penn Valley and Penn Wynne Elementary, Ardmore Junior High, graduating from Lower Merion High School in 1976. He developed a love for sports during his high school years and became a tremendous asset to his middle school track team. He also excelled in his position of wide receiver on his high school football team.

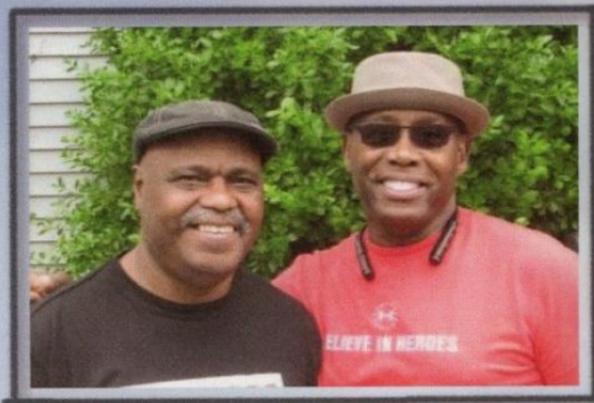

Walter Lee Brokenborough, Jr., affectionately known as "Butch" and "Broke", was born June 5th, 1958, to the late Walter Lee Brokenborough, Sr. and Pinkey Ann Carter Brokenborough, at Bryn Mawr Hospital in Bryn Mawr, PA. Walter was the oldest of three children. The family resided in Ardmore, PA.

Walter loved school and even though finances were not readily available, Walter was determined to further his education. In the Fall of 1976, Walter enrolled in Lincoln University in Oxford, PA., graduating with a Bachelor of Science degree in accounting in 1980.

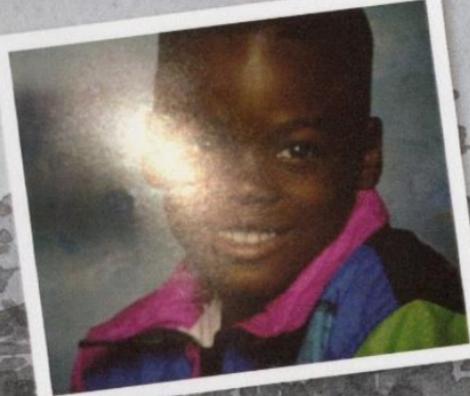

After graduating from college, Walter was employed as an accountant at High Steel Industries and relocated to Lancaster, PA. Walter dedicated his professional life to his career as a skilled and respected accountant. He also found joy in helping his family and friends during tax season. His professionalism and dedication to his work were admired by colleagues and clients alike.

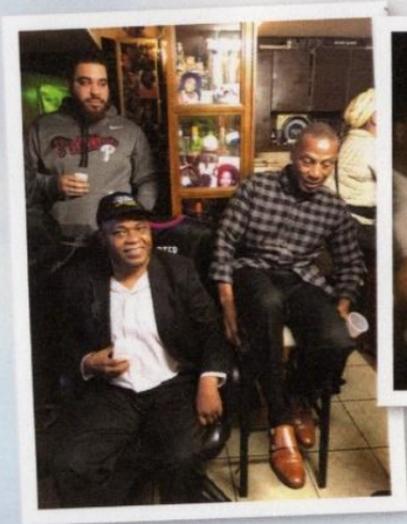

The happiest time in Walter's life was in 1985, after the birth of his son Andrew. At a young age, Andrew came to live with his Dad until he graduated High School. Walter was a devoted father and displayed unconditional love toward his son.

In 2004, after 24 years of service, he began to have serious health issues and as a result, he had to resign from his position at High Steel Industries. In 2004, while in the hospital he committed his life to Christ.

Beyond his career, Walter was a fervent supporter of the Dallas Cowboys, a passion he shared with friends and family during countless game days. His love for football extended to his role as the head coach of the Ardmore Panthers and his son's community football team in Lancaster, PA, where he mentored and inspired young athletes with his wisdom, dedication, and unwavering support. His impact on the community and the young lives he touched will be remembered for years to come. A lover of jazz music, Walter found immense joy in attending the Capital Jazz Fest in Columbia, MD, and the Penn Relays in Philadelphia every year. These annual events were a testament to his love for music and sports, bringing him happiness and cherished memories.

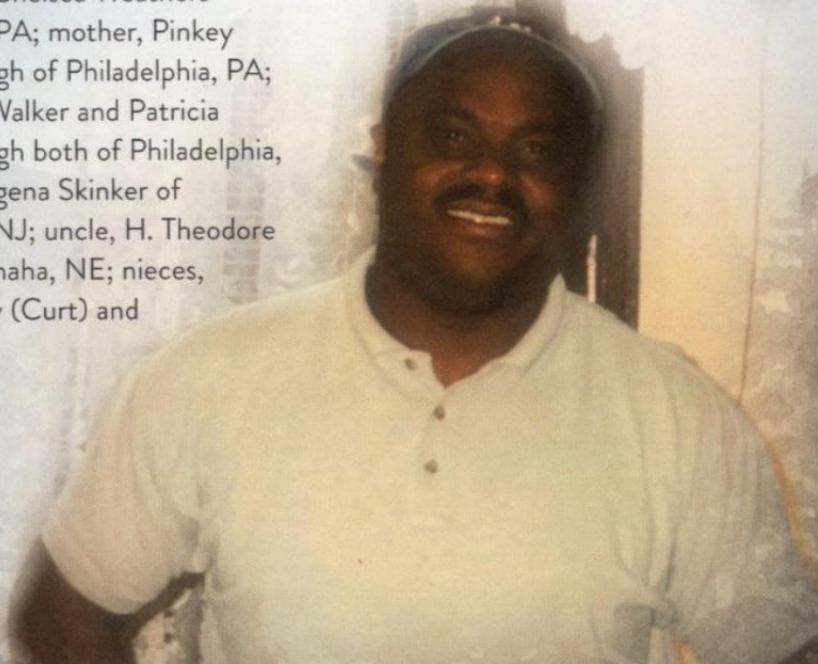

He will be remembered for his infectious laugh, his quiet calm demeanor and his willingness to help family when in need. If you borrowed money from him, he would not say no but you would have to give him a deadline for returning the money.

Walter leaves to cherish his memory, Andrew Weathers (Quilletta) of Lancaster, PA; granddaughters, Cherish and Chelsea Weathers of Lancaster PA; mother, Pinkey Brokenborough of Philadelphia, PA; sisters, Rita Walker and Patricia Brokenborough both of Philadelphia, PA; aunt, Eugena Skinker of Willingboro, NJ; uncle, H. Theodore Carter of Omaha, NE; nieces, Mary Worthy (Curt) and Alani Brokenborough; two great nieces and two great nephews; one god son, Chesney Walker; a host of cousins and best friends Larry Shippen, Keith Bookert and Kenny Walker.
