

A Poem for Anthony Lang

By: Colby Little

Life is a short hike through a long trail
But as long as you have your fellow hiker
No matter what you'll never fail.

they share the lowest of valleys and the highest of peaks
They keep each other strong
And help each other through many tough weeks.

No matter how many trip and fall your fellow hiker will pick you up
And lift you above it all.

They cherish and rejoice when their hiking group grows
Through the strong storms and calm creeks
When you reach that last peak everybody knows,
That life is a short hike through a long trail
And as long as you're with family
There will always be someone who lives to tell the tale.