Cupcake,
"Stop all that cursing,"
you'd say half serious, half amused Always saying you loved me even when we had our attitudes.
Buttercup and Cupcake
I hated being called that back then
But now it rings of love and I hear your voice
again.
Never knowing when our last time face to face
will be.
I'm kind of in denial because I still believe
you here with me.
Loudest one in the room, only wish that voices
can last forever.
Carrying the nicknames and memories like echoes when we were together.
I know you said you were tired and I'm glad you can get some sleep now I'll talk to you in my prayers and picture you in my dreams
towns.
I'll always be your cupcake and or your
buttercup.
You'll always be my grandmom, My shining
star that showed me love.

Your Cupcake Shayala

A devoted fan of the Philadelphia Eagles, she enjoyed cheering for her team on game days.

Among her most treasured moments were those spent in conversation with her Godson, Earl Thomas Jr., whose presence brought her immense joy. Diane's warm spirit and ability to appreciate life's small wonders will be fondly remembered by all who knew her.
