The Dash

I read of a man who stood to speak at the funeral of a friend. He referred to the dates on the tombstone from the beginning... to the end.

He noted that first came the date of birth and spoke of the following date with tears, but he said what mattered most of all was the dash between those years.

For that dash represents all the time they spent alive on earth and now only those who loved them know what that little line is worth.

For it matters not, how much we own, the cars... the house... the cash. What matters is how we live and love and how we spend our dash.

So think about this long and hard; are there things you'd like to change? For you never know how much time is left that still can be rearranged.

To be less quick to anger and show appreciation more and love the people in our lives like we've never loved before.

If we treat each other with respect and more often wear a smile... remembering that this special dash might only last a little while.

So when your eulogy is being read, with your life's actions to rehash, would you be proud of the things they say about how you lived your dash?

Mike,

You were the best thing in my life besides our beautiful girls. We have been through so much but look at how far we came. I love you so very much and always will. I promise I will stay strong and do this for you. You are my everything, my best friend. All the jokes and little things you said will always be with me and will help me stay strong. I hope you smile down on us every day. I hope you are surrounded by people you love and one day we will all be together.

Forever & Always My Love,
Valerie
