

The Cycle of Eternity

Dana K. Craig

When comes my last sunset, when new ventures I face,
As I continue my journey, as I drift into space.
Release I shall be from gravity's bond,
Release from its pull, to explore the beyond.
This part of my life is once more complete
And I must move on new adventures to meet.
Out there if I may, out there if I can,
I'll watch the Great Planner as He works on His Plan.
I'll watch as he gathers space dust for a sun,
And mold it and shape it and when it is done
He'll put it just so as He puts it in place,
Then give it a light to mark it in space.
From scraps of star dust I know He will make
Some planets and comets and then He will take
His finger and circle, with His finger He'll mark
The orbits He wants His creations to arc.
On the the spaces of time I'll see without flaw
That creation's eternal, the Eternal Law.
