To My Grandma May She R.I.P.

I asked you what your favorite things were from color to job. I thought i asked everything i could. Now your gone and i want to know more. Things i didnt think of till now. Things like your favorite memory with your mom? Where you would go if u were mad and much more. None of that matters. What does matter is i had a life time with you as my grandma. I might not know everything. What i do know is you loved me an thats all I need. Saying goodbye is never easy. One moment your talking to me about your show the next your really gone. I wonder where the time has went. Seems like yesterday you were dropping me off for my first day of school crying an me wondering why... thinking im going to see you in a few hours. I get it now a few hours was like forever. Now your really gone forever and its like its not real. Maybe its not maybe ill see you in another life...

Fly high grandma fay may you R.I.P.
