When I Think of My Mother

When I think of my mother
Her voice comes back to me
Telling me to chase my dreams, and to be all I can be Praying for me at night or singing the worries away
Or asking me if she hit the lottery today

When I think of my mother
I smell the yardbird frying
Chicken was Fannie's favorite food, you know I'm not lying
Her recipe for yams makes an appearance every Thanksgiving
And you'd swear that Popeyes was her reason for living

When I think of my mother
Sometimes I chase the anger away
It wasn't always blue skies & sunshine; plenty days were gray
Her triggers could be silly, her shortcomings on full display
The arguments were petty and often money got in the way

When I think of my mother
I can get a bit frustrated
She had greatness in her when she wasn't surly or jaded
She could light up a room and make everyone laugh
She had a kind word for everyone who crossed her path

When I think of my mother
Sometimes I snicker
Those ole country sayings, like "you can't out slick the slicker"
Home spun wisdom and knick-knacks as far as the eye can see
And the classic way that she pronounced "Miami"

When I think of my mother
I remember what she taught me
Do well in school and be kind to everyone you see
Take care of your siblings and always spread love
Keep Jesus first and pray to the angels above

When I think of my mother
There's one last part
She loved her children and grandson with all of her heart
When you think of my mother, don't focus on the pain
For she loved you as well, but God finally called her name.
