

In Loving Memory

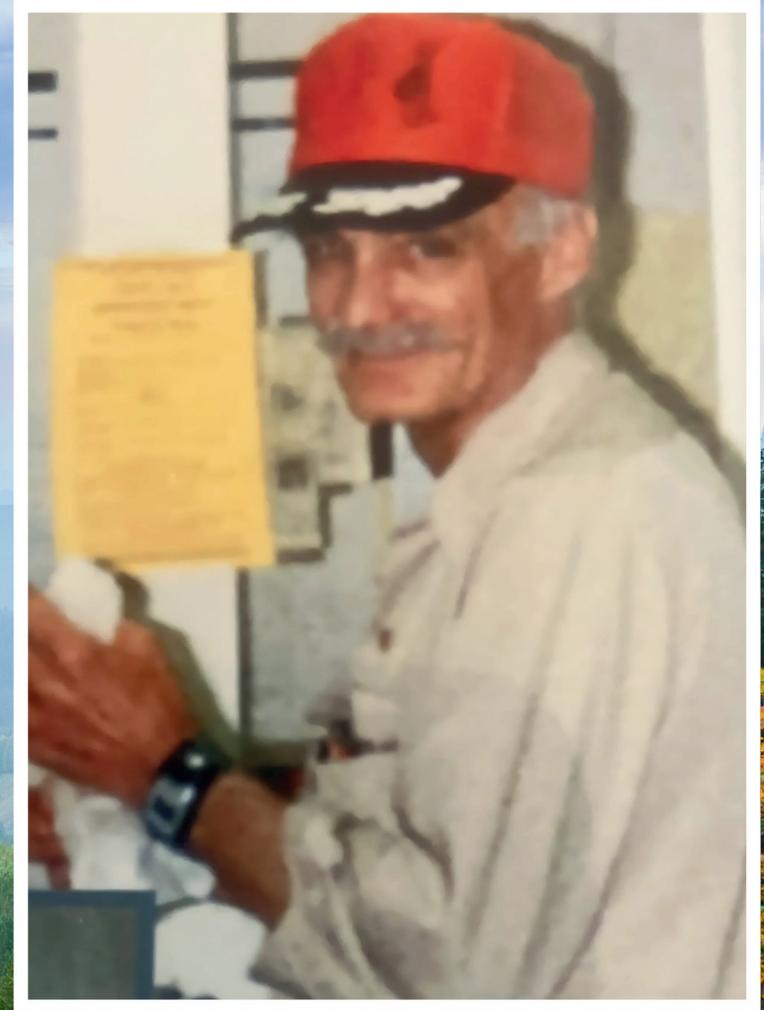

A mind so keen, a spirit bright
Lost to the world, to endless night.
But numbers dance a timeless song,
Where you belonged, where you belonged.

Through proofs and theorems, you did roam,
A universe within your home.
Now stars align, a silent grace,
In infinite, that empty space.

No more the chalk no more the board,
Your legacy forever poured.
A math student's heart, a scholar's soul,
Now part of the great mathematical whole.

May your spirit find its peace,
Where equations never cease.
A mathematician, a noble name,
Forever burning, a steady flame.
