Miss Me, But Let Me Go

When I come to the end of the day
And the sun has set for me
I want no rites in a gloom-filled room.
Why cry for a soul set free?
Miss me a little, but not too long
And not with your head bowed low.
Remember the love we once shared—
Miss me, but let me go.
For this is a journey we all must take
And each must go alone.
It's all a part of the Maker's plan,
A step on the road to home.
When you are lonely and sick at heart
Go to the friends we know
And bury your sorrows
In doing good deeds—
Miss me, but let me go.

Memories

Terry Ray Regehr, born to Virginia Harris and son of Jane (Krehbiel) and Robert Regehr, was born April 29, 1960, in Lindsborg, Kansas. Terry was one of nine children. He had four brothers and four sisters.

Terry was raised in Moundridge, Kansas. He was a lifelong member of Eden Mennonite Church in Moundridge. He was very active and excelled at sports, especially basketball. He was a phenomenal basketball player. He earned the nickname, "Skywalker," because of his ability to seemingly fly through the air and was one of the few athletes of his time to two-handed dunk.

Throughout his life, Terry had a special bond with his identical twin, Tim. They were so much alike, that it was common for people to confuse them for one another. Even when they weren't physically together, they had the uncanny ability to do or wear the same thing without even communicating.

Terry loved NASCAR, motorcycles, truck driving, boating, fishing at the Krehbiel family pond, entertaining, hosting, cooking, and spending quality time with his family and friends. He never had children of his own, but it was well known that he viewed his nephews, Kody and Trevor, as his children, and treated them like they were his own sons.

Although Terry only had sixty-five short years here on Earth, he lived life to the fullest. Terry worked hard, and he played hard. He had a servant's heart, always willing to lend a helping hand.

On August 17, 2025, Terry was called home to be with his Heavenly Father. He will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved him.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Jane and Robert Regehr, birth mother, Virginia (Jerry) Harris and brother, Michael Harris. His surviving family members include his siblings: twin brother, Tim (Rebecca) Regehr, Jo (Tony) Unruh, Karin (Darin Vauter), Brad (Ashley) Harris, Shelby Harris, Roger (Terra) Regehr, and Lori Spain; longtime companion Tamra Nelson; fur baby, his Saint Bernard, Maggie, and many nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles, cousins, and a host of friends.
