REMEMBERING
THE LIFE AND LEGACY OF DAVID
ANDREW RASHAAD

David Andrew Treadwell (who later changed his name to David Rashaad) was born in Randolph County, Alabama, on December 6, 1949, to the late Mary Rebecca Phillips and Albert Logan Treadwell. He was the eldest of six children and is survived by his brothers Arthur, Donald, Eddie, and Martin, and his sister Phyllis. His brother Robert preceded him in death.

Although born in Alabama, David was raised in Chicago, where he attended Marshall High School. He was later drafted into the military during wartime. Upon returning to civilian life, he began working for American Airlines, where he was able to indulge in his love of travel. He made it a personal goal to visit every state at least once! He also ventured into entrepreneurship by opening a hair salon, which he operated for several years.

David's first child, Lisa Treadwell, was born in 1971. Three more children were born between 1985 and 1995: Sharra (Anthony) Stover, Meiosha Rashaad, and Andrew Rashaad.

David relocated to Nashville sometime in the mid-1980s, where he discovered a new passion for the automotive sales industry. For many years, he worked in management for Beaman Automotive Group, where he excelled and received numerous sales awards. After leaving Beaman, he continued working in management at several other dealerships.

During his time at Beaman, David met Rhonda Kelley, with whom he fell in love. They were married on July 20, 2000, in Las Vegas, Nevada, and shared 26 years of marriage. Through this union, David gained two additional sons, Edward Lilkil (Emily) Kelley and Ricardo (Monica) Kelley. Through these sons, he was blessed with six beautiful grandchildren: Elijah, Caiden, Justin, Isaiah, Kyrie, and London.

While living in Nashville, David also joined Lake Providence Missionary Baptist Church, where he became an active and dedicated member. He served as the lead greeter in the Greeters Ministry and was also a member of the Usher Board.

David leaves to cherish his memory his nephews, Terrell, Zeric, and Donald; nieces, Genesis, Charity, Cari, Chiquilla, and Shenel; great-niece, Destiny; and great-nephew, Londyn, along with a host of other relatives and close friends.
