

Obituary

David would be the first one to tell you he was an addict, but that did not define who he was. From the time he was a little guy, he laughed at everything. You couldn't help but love him. It meant a lot to him to make people laugh, but inside he was troubled and tormented. He didn't love himself enough, yet he loved others very well.

David leaves behind: his mother, Valerie; his father, George; his stepfather, Eddie and Big Dave; his sisters, Sommer, Tracy and Katia; his brother, George and Damion and his daughter Ava. He also leaves behind his aunts, uncles and cousins.

As a family, we were all frustrated with how his life was going. Sometimes blinded of his good qualities because of his addiction, but he loved each one of us. He trusted his brother with his daughter's life. We will never know how it could have been different for him.

He also leaves behind a ton of friends that he left an imprint on their life. Talk to any of them and they will tell you they were frustrated too, but they knew all about his struggles. He loved hard, he laughed a lot, but didn't live long enough.

Now he rests in the hands we trust him in...

Poem of Life

Life is but a stopping place,
A pause in what's to be.
A resting place along the road,
to sweet eternity.
We all have different journeys,
Different paths along the way,
We all were meant to learn some things,
but never meant to stay...
Our destination is a place,
Far greater than we know.
For some the journey's quicker,
For some the journey's slow.
And when the journey finally ends,
We'll claim a great reward,
And find an everlasting peace.
Together with the Lord.

Therefore we do not lose heart.
Though outwardly we are wasting away,
yet inwardly we are being renewed day by day.
For our light and momentary troubles
are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all.
So we fix our eyes not on what is seen,
but on what is unseen,
since what is seen is temporary,
but what is unseen is eternal.
