"We were all put on this earth to be humans, but no one was made to be the same. As anyone else, I'm not better than you, and you are not better than I. I wish that everyman was my brother, hand in hand. I will never understand why we have to be the way we are now. If everyone that read this would sit back and think about how nice the world would be if everyone would treat each other as brother. The world may even be worth living in."
