Dedicatory Prayer Lane Hillam

*And if I were to name you, this tiny love of mine.
I couldn't even speak it, till you have grown into a vine.*

*So small and fragile this hearty little seed.
Who could have known it would become my every need.*

*But you my love have withered so very many times.
When I have given you names I thought would do just fine.*

*And so I left you, rooted there in place. And did not tend to,
But neglected you. Until I saw that face!*

*You burst forth in an instant, so full and fair in front of me!
And I couldn't look away from such raw and genuine beauty!*

And so, now if I were to name you, this love of mine that's Grown so wild and so freely!

It is, will be, and always has been:

CHELSEA!
