

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I, Jennifer along with Emari, am deeply grateful to the YNHH staff and to everyone who has wrapped us in love and support during this painful time. As we grieve the loss of our beloved KING, we are finding comfort in every prayer, every kind word, and every act of compassion shared with us.

LEE

Curry

Marshall Lee Curry IV, 13, of New Haven, Connecticut, was born on August 17, 2012, and entered eternal rest on January 4, 2026. Though his time here was short, Marshall's life was rich with love, connection, and quiet joy.

Marshall was the beloved son of Jennifer Baker and the loving big brother of Emari Moore. He had a quiet and gentle personality, often reserved, but deeply observant and kind. While he didn't always feel like he fit in, Marshall found comfort and belonging among those who showed him genuine care. Love found him, and he held onto it.

He attended Wexler-Grant School, where he formed meaningful bonds not only with classmates but especially with the staff from the principal and teachers to the janitors who made him feel seen, supported, and loved. Those relationships meant the world to him.

Marshall enjoyed football, loved drawing, and appreciated life's simple pleasures, especially his favorite steak and cheese from Jersey Mike's. Around people he trusted, his silly side would come out, leaving behind laughter and unforgettable moments.

Marshall is lovingly remembered by his mother, grandparents, sibling, aunts, uncles, cousins and extended family and friends who will forever cherish his memory. His gentle spirit and quiet strength touched many hearts.

Marshall's life reminds us that love doesn't have to be loud to be real. Sometimes it shows up through kindness, consistency, and simply making someone feel they belong. His memory will live on through every life he touched.

MOM, HOLD THE LOVE

Mom, I know your heart is hurting,
I see it in the way you breathe.
If I could, I would take that pain
And carry it away from you with ease.

You gave me love in a million ways,
In quiet nights and ordinary days.
Every laugh, every hug so tight
Made my world feel safe and right.

I didn't mean to say goodbye so soon,
There was still so much left to do.
But nothing—not time, not distance—can erase
The love we shared, or take its place.

When you miss me, speak my name,
Remember me just as I came
Curious, loved, and wrapped in you,
Everything good I learned from you.

Live gently, Mom. Be proud, be kind.
Carry me softly in your mind.
I'll be with you in all you do,
Because I am love and love stays with you
