

Clinton Redmann was born on July 7, 1944, in Mandan, ND, and grew up on the family farm north of Glen Ullin, where he would cultivate not only crops but also lifelong memories and cherished relationships. Clinton was a proud graduate of Glen Ullin High School, class of 1962. As the third generation of Redmanns on the homestead, he dedicated his life to farming and ranching tending to the land with an unwavering passion and commitment that echoed through the years. His love for agriculture was only rivaled by his spirited involvement in the community; Clinton never missed an activity at the school, supporting local events and fostering connections that brought joy to all who knew him. In addition to his devotion to farming and ranching Clinton was a master collector, finding delight in auctions and amassing an impressive collection of toy tractors and cars that showcased his lifelong love for all things agricultural. He also enjoyed the thrill of motorcycles in his early years, eventually transitioning to side by sides and later to a sports car, embracing each new adventure with enthusiasm. Clinton is survived by his loving sister, LaVerna (Frank) Rysavy; his nephew, Rick Rysavy, and his niece, Michelle (John) Edgar. His legacy will live on not only through his family but also through the countless lives he touched with his kindness, generosity, and unwavering spirit. As we remember Clinton Henry Redmann, may we find comfort in the lessons he imparted and the passion he ignited in all who were fortunate enough to know him. Clinton was preceded in death by: Henry Redmann, Gertrude Redmann.
