St. George, Utah – William Herbert Doughty, a true renaissance man, lived great and died heroically after enduring a long degenerative illness. He passed away peacefully on February 17, 2022, surrounded by family. Born on September 1, 1931, to Lillis Johnston and Glenn Arthur Doughty in Orange, California, he spent his childhood in the Los Angeles, Pacific Palisades area.

His motto, “There is no magic in a small dream,” is the essence of his life. He was confident, driven, and determined to “Build God’s Kingdom,” no matter the cost. His life got especially exciting when, after several attempts, he won over the beautiful East Coast debutante Carolyn Powers Cushman. They had a whirlwind romance and wedding in Germany while he served in the army. He and Carolyn later took up residence in the Los Angeles area.

His entrepreneurial passion and indomitable generosity gave rise to several successful businesses and nonprofit organizations. Among them are American Investment Counseling, Quantum Financial, the now internationally recognized National Academy for Child Development (NACD), Institute for Constitutional Education (ICE), Youth for America (YFA), and George Wythe College.

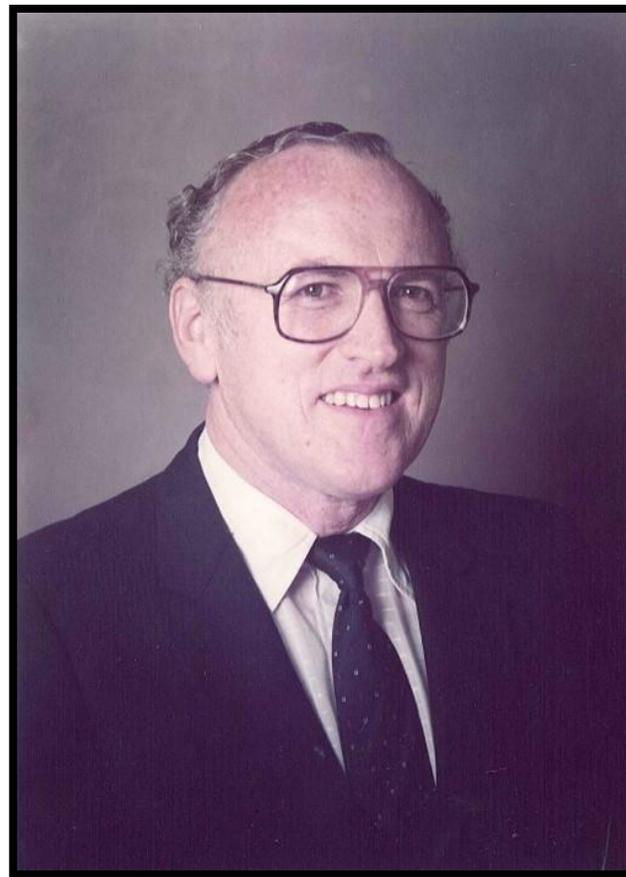

His big dreams also included a large family, which resulted in nine children. He inspired each of his children to be optimistic and forward thinking like him. He and Carolyn created a dynamic home environment filled with fun, activity, and lots of guests. He demonstrated great courage and faith when he resigned as lay minister of the thriving Rolling Hills Covenant Church in Palos Verdes, California to become a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in 1971.

When he met Dr. Cleon Skousen and began studying the U.S. Constitution, his dreams took a new, but equally exciting and challenging path. He and Carolyn pulled up their Palos Verdes, California roots and moved to southern Utah. There, he began a constitutional education movement that impacted thousands of young people and resulted in the launching of George Wythe College in Cedar City. For a period of time, he and Carolyn lived in Mammoth Valley where Bill continued to teach, write a weekly Doughty report, and prove in three “mammoth” green houses, you could grow prolific produce even in a subzero climate.

Bill was a builder of businesses, communities and most importantly people. He launched many young people into successful ventures as he tutored and encouraged them to believe in themselves and to follow their dreams. But his greatest achievement was the enduring legacy of faith in God, courage, and vision he left for his posterity.

The Doughty family would like to express a special thanks to Hospice and Ovation’s Memory Care for the loving support they provided during the last few months of his life.

In Loving Memory Of
