

Our Purple Light

Purple was more than a color she loved
It mirrored her spirit, her heart, and her soul
A blend of deep courage and gentleness too
A rare kind of beauty, she tried hard to pursue
She laughed in small moments, gave comfort in pain
Found hope in the struggle, when others saw rain
Even in silence, her love spoke out loud
A calm in the storm, a break in the clouds
We hold her in memories; her love still shines bright
Guiding our steps with her purple light
Sickness tried to break her, it came to destroy
She found comfort in God, he gave back her joy
When she became weary, eternal rest near
She left in a whisper that no one could hear
Surrounded by family, surrounded by love
Now she's in God's hands, in the heavens above
Her time here was brief, just a flash of light
But her presence lives on, although out of sight
She's in the sunsets that fade to a violet hue
She's in the flowers that bloom in a purple-soaked view
And when the dark feels heavy and life feels blue
We'll look to the sky and remember this truth
Light never dies, it just changes its flight
Forever she shines... our purple light
