

"When I am no More"

-Dave Youbut-

When I am no more breathing

When I am finally at rest

Don't look for me in the places I once stood or in the silence of an empty room

Look for me in the sky painted in dusks golden hues dancing between the clouds

Resting in the stillness of the stars for I am there watching you not with eyes but with essence with a love that no longer needs a body to be felt

Call my name softly and the wind will carry your voice to me

Gaze into the night and the brightest star

you will see my soul burning gently as if whispering

I never truly left you and through the quite frequencies of the universe

I will send you every ounce of love that I couldn't give you when I was still bound by time, by fear, by silence.

Know this, death is not the end of love

it's merely the place where love learns to become infinite...
