Virginia

A pack of smokes, a can of ice-cold pop,
A romance book she never wanted to drop.
She'd roll a strike and laugh so loud and free,
The brightest spark in any company.
With bingo dauber raised and lucky charm,
She brought a room to life with genuine warmth.
The funniest lady, always full of grace,
No one on earth can ever take her place.
Though she has gone to take her final rest,
The memories she left are of the best.
We'll hear her laughter ringing in the air,
And miss her vibrant spirit everywhere.
