Let Me Choose

*My loved ones. Yes with the heart, not the head, men should think of Me,
and then worship would be instinctive.*

breath in my very Spirit in pure air and fervent desire.

Keep the eye of your spirit ever upon Me,

The window of your soul open towards Me. You have ever to know

*That all things are yours —
That what is lovely I delight to give to you.*

Empty your mind of all that limits.

Whatever is beautiful you can have.

Leave more and more the choice to Me.

You will have no regrets.
