

The Robe, by Mercy River

Faithful women reached through the crowd and her hands gently touched your robe and you through her grace made her whole now my broken body, is fading fast and like her, I'm searching through the crowds desperate to find you somehow

And I'm reaching for that robe I know that you can make me whole but if its not meant to be that way if I can't stay, then just wrap me in that robe and hold me when I go

If you call me, home to you please help those who love me understand we are still held together by your hands

*I'm reaching for that robe
I know that you can make me whole but maybe in a different way if I can't stay, then just wrap me in that robe
and hold me when I go*

Hold her when she goes.

Let Him hold you, heal you, and make you whole.
