The Life and Legacy of Benjamin Cedric Williams

A Life Remembered

Benjamin Cedric Williams was born on August 28, 1965, to Benjamin Williams Jr. and Deloris Williams Brown. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Florida A&M University and was a member of Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Tallahassee, Florida.

On October 30, 1997, Benjamin married his beloved wife, Cynthia A. Williams. Together, they built a family centered on their daughters, Brianna C. Williams and Krischan C. Williams.

Benjamin was preceded in death by his parents, Benjamin Williams Jr. and Deloris Williams Brown; his paternal grandparents, Benjamin Williams Sr. and Annie Bell Williams; and his maternal grandparents, Rounder Williams and Mary Ella Harris. He leaves to cherish his memory his beloved wife, Cynthia A. Williams; daughters, Brianna C. Williams and Krischan C. Williams; brother, Damon Williams; sister, Valerie Johnson (Arthur); three nephews; four nieces; and a host of other relatives and friends.

Benjamin dedicated more than 30 years of his life to serving the State of Florida through the Department of Financial Services. Throughout his long and distinguished career, he was known for his dedication, hard work, and commitment to serving others. After more than three decades of faithful service, he proudly retired, leaving behind a legacy of perseverance and dedication.

In his free time, he found joy in the simple things such as grilling and cooking, as well as listening to music. He cherished every opportunity to spend time surrounded by his family and friends. To him, some of life's greatest moments were those spent simply being in the company of the people he loved.

Benjamin was a proud Florida A&M University Rattler, a devoted alumnus who carried his Rattler pride with him wherever he went. His love for FAMU was more than school spirit—it was a meaningful part of who he was, and he took great pride in being a Rattler.

He was also a gifted and hardworking entrepreneur who ran his own online computer business. Through his knowledge, dedication, and willingness to help others, his business became more than a source of income—it was a way for him to serve and contribute to his community. He was always willing to share his expertise, lend a helping hand, and find a way to assist those around him.

Above all, he was a loving and giving man with a heart for people. He would do anything for anybody and never hesitated to help someone in need. Whether through a kind word, a helping hand, his time, or simply being there when someone needed him. His generosity, loyalty, humor, and genuine love for others left an impression on everyone fortunate enough to know him.

He will be remembered not only for the life he lived and the things he accomplished, but for the lives he touched along the way. His love for his family, his pride in his Rattler FAMUly, his dedication to his community, and his willingness to give of himself so freely will remain a lasting part of his legacy.
