TO OUR FATHER

I still feel your hand, though you're far from my reach,
Like waves that still whisper along the old beach.
Your laughter still drifts through the rooms of my mind,
A voice full of comfort, so gentle, so kind.
You taught me of courage, of kindness, of grace,
How love leaves its mark time can't erase.
And though I still ache for your guiding light,
I find bits of you in the stars at night.
Some days I still call your name in the air,
Hoping you'll answer just knowing you care.
I talk to the sky when my heart feels torn,
And feel your embrace in the blush of dawn.
You're gone from this world, but never from me,
I carry your heart where it's meant to be.

So rest now, dear Daddy your love I'll replay
Forever your daughters, in every way.
Lovingly submitted by your daughters
