So, as you look at the firefighter with his rake, hose or axe,
His beet red face or ice-covered mustache,
You should know why he goes through that smokey front door,
And is forced to crawl like a baby down on the floor.
He does it to save both lives and property,
All that is precious to you and to me.
So, take a good look at this modern warrior who serves his call proud and true,
And know that he would die just to save me and you.
