Miss Me, But Let Me Go

When I come to the end of the road, when the sun has set and my journey here is through.

I want no tears, no room filled with sorrow. Why cry for a soul that has finally been set free?

Miss me a little, but not for too long. And please, don't bow your head in grief.

Instead, remember the love we shared, the laughter, the memories, the moments that made our lives a little brighter.

Miss me, but let me go, for this journey we each must take alone.

It is all part of the Master's plan, a gentle step along the road that leads us home.

And when you feel lonely, when your heart is heavy and sick with sorrow, turn to the friends we knew, and let their love surround you.

Bury your sorrow in kindness and good deeds. Let the love we shared live on through you. And when you think of me, smile instead of cry.

Miss me, but let me go.

Teresa Lynn Perkins, 61, of Springfield, Missouri, passed away peacefully at her home on August 10, 2026, at 2:45 a.m.

Teresa was born on March 15, 1965, in Springfield, Missouri, to Garry and Linda Davis. She was a loving and strong-willed woman who loved deeply and cared fiercely for the people in her life. Above all else, family was her everything.

Teresa had a love for collecting things and enjoyed taking pictures, especially capturing the people and moments that meant something to her. She was always behind the camera rather than in front of it—she loved taking pictures, but definitely did not like having her own picture taken.

Teresa was preceded in death by her parents, Garry and Linda Davis, and her brother, Dennis Davis.

She leaves behind her beloved husband, Travis Perkins; her daughter, Amber Jacoby, and her son, Devon Perkins; their spouses, Jacob Jacoby and Kirsten Perkins; her brother, Michael Davis; and many grandchildren who will forever carry her love and memories with them.

Teresa will be deeply missed by her family and all who knew and loved her. Her strength, love, and devotion to her family will remain a part of them always.
