This is For Anyone who has lost their mother at a young age
A poem by: Ty Shun Bigby

Silence of a motherless child

The mother
The woman who gave birth to you
Gone
No Sign
No warning
Leaving your heart
Forever Mourning
Silent pain
Silent void
No sign of her voice
Not a whisper
No noise
She is gone without a trace
You'll never feel her warmth
You'll never see her face
Pictures never help
You keep to yourself
Locking away your pain
With the thought of only yourself to blame
Thinking how could this happen
Is it your fault
Could you have done something that could have helped
To prevent such a loss
But you must move on Though your heart cannot
Feeling tightness in your throat
After saying her name
You sit alone
In silence
You sit ashamed
And keep your feelings inside
Though you know that they start to eat you alive
Hiding your pain with pride
Not telling a soul
That was the last time you talked to your mother
Was in the only dream
When her spirit came and hugged and kissed you
Telling you goodbye
Her touch felt real
The warmth of her hand wiping away your tears
Saying it's ok
We will see each other again
One day
Then awaken from your dream
Your heart hurting
Yet your face has a big smile
But in your mind, you tell yourself
Whether or not you try to shut yourself off or try to stay in denial
Your heart will never lose the pain.
From
the Silence of a motherless child.

TyShun

TyShun Anthony Bigby, 28, of North Kansas City, MO, passed away on Sunday, April 19th, 2026, at his home. He was born on November 25th, 1997, in Kansas City, MO, to Anzarita LaRaine Bigby. TyShun was lovingly raised by his grandmother, LaRaine Allen, who he fondly called Nana, and his grandfather, Nelvin L. Allen, whom he referred to as Dad.

TyShun was preceded in death by his mother, Anzarita LaRaine Bigby, and by his great-grandmothers, Nettie B. Mitchell and Addie M. Huff, as well as his great-grandfathers, Harvey O. Mitchell and John W. Bigby.

He is survived by his siblings: Ryan C. Cheatham, C'ara L. Cheatham, Alonta L. Grayson, Donaven J. Allen Sr., Devin L. Allen, and Matthew T. Whitten-Allen. He is also survived by his grandfathers, Edward A. Mitchell and Quentin L. West. Additionally, TyShun leaves behind several aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, his lifelong best friend and sister, Renae M. Tapia, and a host of close friends.

TyShun accepted Jesus Christ as his Lord and Savior at an early age and was baptized. He continued to attend church throughout his life. A proud graduate of Winnetonka High School, North Kansas City, TyShun graduated in 2016, where he was known for his talents in music and sports. He was a standout member of the school's Concert Choir, Marching Band, and Soccer Team, and was a double Varsity letterman in choir and band. He placed second at the district level of music competition, showcasing his dedication and passion for his craft.

In his early career, TyShun worked at Stroud's Chicken, where he began building a strong work ethic. After high school, he managed Dunkin' Donuts for a time before moving on to Red Robin, where he worked for nearly 10 years as a waiter, bartender, and manager, most recently before his passing. TyShun often spoke of his work ethic, which he attributed to his grandfather, Nelvin L. Allen, who worked tirelessly, often juggling multiple jobs, to provide for his family.

TyShun had a variety of hobbies that brought him joy. He loved walking with his dog, Terry, and spending time with friends. He enjoyed movie nights with his closest companions, karaoke, and trips to the lake. TyShun also loved shopping, listening to music, and working with a positive attitude that was contagious to everyone around him. His musical tastes ranged from artists like Tate McRae, Beyoncé, Russ, and Kesha, to a wide variety of other genres.

TyShun will be deeply missed by all who knew him for his generous spirit, his vibrant energy, and his unwavering positivity.
