

MISS ME BUT LET ME GO

When I come to the end of the road
And the sun has set for me,
I want no rites in a gloom-filled room,
Why cry for a soul set free!

Miss me a little - but not for long
And not with your head bowed low.
Remember the love that we once shared,
Miss me, but let me go.

For this journey that we all must take
And each must go alone;
It's all a part of the Master's plan
A step on the road to home.

When you are lonely and sick at heart
Go to the friends we know,
And bury your sorrows in doing good deeds.
Miss me, but let me go.

REMEMBERING TYT TYT

Tyrone “Tyy Tyy” Gantt, affectionately known as the heart of T Street, was born on December 8, 1994, in Washington, D.C., to Catina Gantt and Tyrone Payne. From the very beginning, Tyy had a spirit that could light up a room. His kindness, loyalty, and unforgettable personality made him someone people naturally gravitated toward.

Tyy Tyy attended D.C. Public Schools before continuing his education at Job Corps in Kentucky. While there, he proudly earned his GED along with career certificates in Facility Maintenance and Carpentry. These accomplishments reflected his determination and strong work ethic—qualities that stayed with him throughout his life. He worked for local #602.

Tyy Tyy took great pride in working and providing for himself. Two places that meant a great deal to him were EMG and OMX, where he built meaningful connections and showed the dedication and reliability he was known for.

To many, TyyTyy was more than just a friend—he was family. Known as the heart and glue of T Street, he opened both his home and his heart to countless friends and loved ones. If someone needed a place to stay, someone to talk to, or someone to stand by them, Tyy Tyy was there. He believed in accepting people for who they were and never judged anyone. In many ways, he tried to save everyone around him, always wanting to see the people he cared about do better.

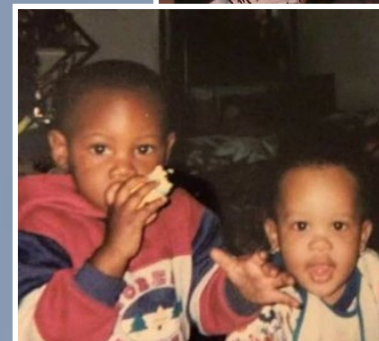

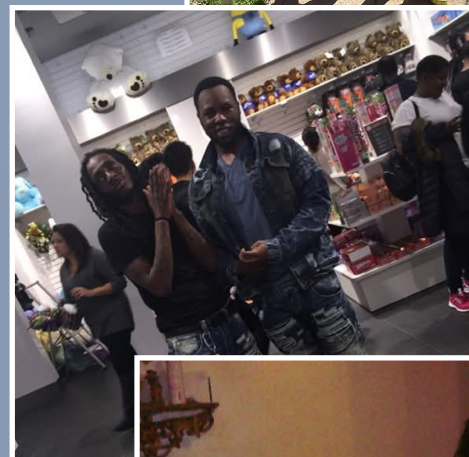

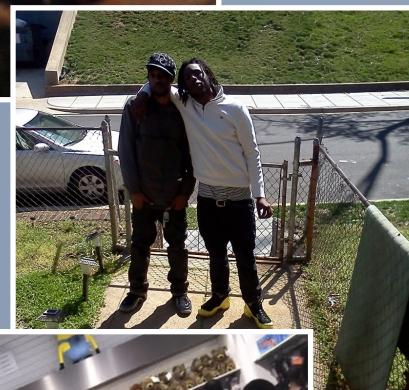

Family meant everything to Tyy Tyy. He especially loved spending time with his godchildren and his cousins, sharing laughter, guidance, and unforgettable moments with them. His love for them was genuine, and he cherished the bonds he had with each of them.

Tyy Tyy loved life and the culture of his city. He had a deep love for Bounce Beat Go-Go music and was proud to be a member of Big Action. Whether it was music playing, cards on the table, or laughter filling the room, he enjoyed being surrounded by friends and family. He loved playing cards, gambling, spending time with loved ones, and living life fully. Known for his charm, he also had a well-known love for women and enjoyed the joy and excitement that came with life’s moments.

Those who knew Tyy Tyy will always remember his generosity, his loyalty, and the way he brought people together. He was someone who stood strong for the people he loved and made sure no one around him felt alone.

Though his time here was far too short, Tyrone “Tyy Tyy” Gantt leaves behind a legacy of love, friendship, and community. His memory will forever live on in the hearts of his family, friends, and the entire T Street community.

“Your life was a blessing, your memory a treasure. You are loved beyond words and missed beyond measure. Rest peacefully, Tyy Tyy. You will forever remain in our hearts.”
