For this one farmer, the worries are over, Lie down and rest your head. The days were long and the work was hard, Put the tractor in the shed. Years were stubborn, and plenty went wrong, But you worked the good dirt anyway. Hang up your shovel inside of the barn, For you've finished your final day. Wash off your work boots one last time, In the puddle by the lane. Take off your gloves and put them down, No more sweat and no more strain. The cattle are fed, the sun's gone low, The machinery's locked and late... Your labor is done, your rest is won, And we'll go on and close the gate.
