

WELSH SONG NO.1

by Estel B. Murdock

When the wind blows through the willows,
And the sun comes shining through,
It reminds me of a window,
And you, smiling through my window.
When the stars at night are shining,
And there's starlight everywhere,
It reminds me of a light,
A warm candle-light
Shining through your window.
When my heart sings my songs of love,
And the dove of peace sings softly,
I meet you on the heather,
And all that comes together,
The wind and starlight in you...
Oh, your eyes, they're full of starlight!
When the Heavens are quick in passing,
And the Earth grows old and gray,
I'll remember a certain angel,
A smiling, singing angel,
I'll remember a shining angel,
Shining through my window...
Oh, your hair, it's white like an angel's!
