CLOSING PRAYER

Pastor Luke Brodeur

The family sincerely thanks you for your caring presence and your prayers. Following the service, you are invited to join them for lunch in the Fellowship Hall.

Cion was an exceptional young man whose intelligence, ambition, and charm made him stand out everywhere he went. He had already accomplished what many spend a lifetime working toward. At only 20 years old, he proudly purchased his first home—an achievement that reflected his determination, maturity, and strong work ethic. His family couldn't have been more proud of the life he was building.

Cion worked as a Legal Billing Analyst, where his intelligence and math skills were evident. He was incredibly smart, hardworking, and had a future filled with endless possibilities.

While Cion was driven and successful, he never lost his playful side. He loved video games and could spend hours immersed in those games. He also had his own funny little dances that would catch everyone off guard and make those around him laugh. Those little moments are now some of the memories his family will cherish forever.

If you knew Cion, you knew his love for steak. He was either filling the entire house with smoke while burning a steak on the stove, or he was walking through the door carrying a Chipotle bag. It became part of who he was—one of those little things that will forever bring smiles, laughter, and tears to everyone who loved him.

One of the greatest joys of Cion's life was finally becoming a big brother at the age of 20. From the moment his little brothers were born, they adored him. Odonis and Orion would cry whenever it was time for Cion to leave, always wanting just a little more time with their big brother. They loved playing with the necklace he wore, and those simple moments together became precious memories that will forever be treasured. The love they shared was pure, unconditional, and unmistakable.

Above all else, Cion was a deeply loved son, big brother, grandson, family member, and friend. His life, though far too short, was filled with purpose, accomplishments, laughter, and love. The void left by his passing is immeasurable, but so is the legacy he leaves behind.

Cion leaves behind his loving mother, Malinda Aguilar (Maier); his two little brothers, Odonis Aguilar and Orion Aguilar; his stepfather, Nelson Aguilar; and his father, TY-Ree Jordan.

He was also loved beyond measure by his grandmother, his uncles, aunt, his many cousins, and countless friends whose lives were brighter because of him.

Although our hearts are broken, we find comfort in knowing that Cion's love, laughter, determination, and unforgettable spirit will live on through every memory shared and every life he touched.

♥ My heart ♥

*"A life is not measured by the number of years we live,
but by the love we give,
the lives we touch, and the memories we leave behind."*

*Forever loved. Forever missed.
Forever our Cion.*
